Thank you for your kind support/Sponsorship

Dear Sir/Ma,

Nigerian Universities hold and use on their premises laboratory animals in their teaching and research activities in a bid to unravel the cause and course of some of the debilitating health burdens of our communities, like tuberculosis, malaria, HIV, diabetes, Parkinson's, guinea worm infestation, sleeping sickness and early childhood killer diseases, but the result have not been clinically translatable.

Laboratory animals are sentient animals, that means they can suffer from pain, distress and discomfort. These are significant dynamic elements that many researchers have not factored into their work when they use these animals.

ACURET has been training investigators in the principles of humane animal care and use for scientific purposes in developing countries in the last ten years. This year, ACURET aim to work specifically with Nigerian Universities, to inspire, stimulate and train a delegation of their ethical committee members, who will return to train others on their campuses, snowballing the effects of adequate and proper care and use of lab animals in research, education and testing. The result will become beneficial to the community and society in the months and years ahead. A properly constituted University Animal Ethical Committee must have a representative of the community as a member of that committee.

We therefore seek the backing of the community to support and/or sponsor the participation of a University delegation from your area to participate in this training "IACUC in Nigeria" workshop schedule to hold at the IITA Conference Center, Ibadan, Oyo, State, Nigeria; October 23rd – 26th 2019. Kindly indicate your generous support/donation Naira (₦).
